Overall end of learning point:

In the listening skill, most learners listen to longer texts and understand the main points and simple opinions in spoken passages made up of material from different topics, using present and conditional. They understand longer and more complex phrases or sentences. They follow a wide range of classroom instructions. They enjoy listening to and joining in with a wide range of songs, and develop their confidence, imagination and self-expression.

In the speaking skill, most learners use spoken language to initiate and sustain simple conversations on familiar topics or tell stories from own experience. Most learners learn short text and dialogues by heart and perform them in front of an audience. They learn to initiate and sustain short conversations without help.

In the reading skill, most learners read a variety of longer texts from different types. They read aloud with confidence and enjoyment, and also enjoy reading short texts independently. They read and understand the main points and some detail from a short-written passage.

In the writing skill, most learners learn to write some simple sentences from memory and continue to develop their writing skills by constructing short texts using a model. They develop a short text using a model on all the previous topics they have studied. They can write letters to a French penpal using all they know and say a lot about themselves. They can use dictionaries to look up unknown words.

In the intercultural skill, most learners can talk about the differences between France and their country.
